3. Usage Guidelines

3.1 View More or Less is customizable

- The View more or less pattern, is intended to be customized to your projects specifications. These are not out of the box solutions.

3.2 Advantages of using View More or Less

- Quickly loads additional results while the rest of the page stays in place.
- Offers a single, unambiguous choice.
- Allows for a user to view all choices at once, without straining the page load; simply requires clicking the button multiple times.
- Is non-visually intrusive (single button at the bottom of the page) that is easy to find (when the user gets to the end of the list, the button is the next thing they see). Users who are only interested in the first few results (most of them) will never see the button. (By the way, this is a good thing - ideally, the user only sees functionality they want, at the moment they want it.)
- The list grows, instead of results being replaced. "View more" allows the user to easily compare more options across an entire list.
- View more data on a page by collapsing and expanding blocks of copy.

5.1.5 Messages (Desktop): Show 10 messages before showing 'View more'. This rule applies to any list similar to this.

The desktop view shows a navigation bar with 'KAISER PERMANENTE' and a user profile 'Preferred[DATA]FirstName'. Below is a 'Message Center' header with a 'Compose' button. The main content area shows a list of messages from 'Elena Martinez' with a 'Help' link. The messages are grouped under 'Inbox (1)' and include: 'Some plan' (Amanda Lee, MD), 'Your prescription has been filled' (Pharmacy), 'My wrists are tingling' (Elizabeth Gonzalez, CHT), and 'My back is still bothering me' (Hank Shuller, MD). Each message has 'Delete' and 'Print' options.

5.1.6 Messages (Tablet and Mobile): Show 5 messages before showing 'View more'. This rule applies to any list similar to this.

The tablet/mobile view shows a 'Message Center' header with a hamburger menu. Below is a 'Compose' button and a navigation bar with 'Inbox (1)' and 'Sent'. The message list is shown in a card format with a '+' icon on the right. The messages are: 'Can I take advil with aspirin?' (Amanda Lee, MD), 'Can I take advil with aspirin?' (Pharmacy), 'Can I take advil with aspirin?' (Amanda Lee, MD), 'Can I take advil with aspirin?' (Amanda Lee, MD), and 'Can I take advil with aspirin?' (Pharmacy). 7. ADA Considerations

7.1 Expanded/Collapsed

- Need to inform users if a section is expanded/collapsed. We need to include a "state indicator" on the trigger. There are several ways to do this.
- Users can press the Tab key to move from one expanding/collapsing link to the next, but because some sections contain hyperlinks, these links will receive focus as well. In a section that contains many hyperlinks, this would force users to tab through all the links as they seek the control to activate the next expanding section. For convenience, therefore, each expand/collapse link is also wrapped in a heading so that screen-reader users can move from one control to the next by simply pressing the heading shortcut key (e.g., JAWS and NVDA users can press the h key; VoiceOver users can press control+option+command+h).
- Users can select the preceding text again to toggle this text on and off.
 - Note: This section contains a list of links. Tabbing through the list in order to reach the next expand/collapse control would be tedious, which is why each control is wrapped in a heading. Press the screen reader's heading shortcut key to move the focus to the next expand/collapse control.
- If multiple "Show more" are present on the same page, provide a more unique label to help screen reader users distinguish between different "Show more" controls.
 - One method of applying a more specific label is aria-labelledby attribute as shown below:

Lorem ipsum dolor ...Read More
```
 - Other options include off-screen text, or the use of aria-label.

7.2 Actionable Links

- The View More/View Less pattern follows best practices that the view more/view less link text is meaningful within context.
- The actionable link ("more" or "less") includes extra text for screenreaders only that helps describe the content it is referencing.

7.3 Focus

- When "View more" is selected, the focus goes just before the first item being revealed using JS and `tabindex="-1"`
- Modal does something to accomplish a similar functionality. This should apply to text too, reading just a few lines and then the user can view more.
- View more title should have the title reappended to it in a screen reader only format. For example, the title of a view more/less is "welcome to KP, you're a good person", the markup would be similar to "View More `Welcome to KP, you're a good person`"
- When actionable links are pressed, focus should shift to the alternate link that provides the opposite event ("more" or "less").
